Dear Sirs

We are contacting you with reference to a recent claim made for relief under the Research & Development Tax Credit Scheme ("R&D relief").

HMRC takes its responsibility and administration of UK's Tax, Payments and Customs Authority very seriously. We continuously monitor systems and customer records to guard against fraudulent activity.

The claim triggered an alert on our systems and has caused HMRC to believe that you have fraudulently claimed money to which you are not entitled. Therefore, HMRC has blocked payment of this money, to which we believe you are not entitled.

If you think that you are entitled to this money, then you need to contact HMRC as a matter of urgency so that we can re-examine your claim and consider reinstating your payment.

Information and documents that we need:

We need for the period ended 31/03/2021

1. A breakdown and analysis of the £22188.19 claimed.

Your breakdown should categorise costs per allowable legislated headings contained in Corporation Tax Act 2009, sections 1123 to 1142.

Any additional expenses included in the calculation that do not form part of the legislated costs should be highlighted, with a rationale provided as to why they are included.

In categorising these costs, you should use the following sub-headings:

A. Staffing Costs
B. Software or consumable items
C. Qualifying expenditure on externally provided workers
D. Sub-contractor payments

HM Revenue
& Customs

E. Relevant payments to subjects of a clinical trial
F. Any other costs included in the claim to relief

2. Please provide the Vat Registration Number and PAYE Scheme Reference used by the company to report VAT and PAYE liabilities for the above expenditure.

3. Bank statements showing the full expenditure incurred in part (1) above.

4. An explanation of what the scientific or technological advance(s) sought was/were.

To allow HMRC to consider your claim please provide the above documents and information within 30 days of the date of this letter. You will need to send those documents and information to the following email address; fisresearchclaims@hmrc.gov.uk and confirm you are content to accept the risk of corresponding by email. If you never made this claim, please contact the mailbox immediately.

For further guidance on how to claim R&D reliefs for small companies, please visit www.gov.uk and search for 'CIRD81900'.

Guidance on qualifying Research & Development for tax purposes can be found within HMRC guidance manuals. Visit www.gov.uk and search for 'CIRD81900.'

At this time HMRC has not opened a criminal investigation into this suspected fraud. However, you should be aware that HMRC reserves the right to open a criminal investigation into any suspected fraud committed against the R&D scheme. If HMRC did open a criminal investigation in respect of your claim in the future, then any investigation could use as evidence anything that you have said to HMRC about your claim. I mention this only so that you are fully aware of the position should you decide to contact HMRC, and to avoid any confusion.
